KEEPING THE KITCHEN CLEAN

A writer on hygiene has said that "the modern kitchen is a refinery, a laboratory and disinfection station and a factory."

With the kitchenette habit less and less attention is paid to sunlight; instead of being the cheeriest room in the house, the kitchen is often the darkest and worst ventilated.

While it is not always possible to get the ideal kitchen, the woman who rents a house should see that it is not shaded by balconies, that the range is not in some dark alcove where light and air never reach, and that the sink has proper drainage and is free from backboards where grease can lodge.

In building a house staid on woodwork and furnishings rather than on the kitchen. It should be built with at least two windows, preferably so there may be a cross draft, and a third small window above the range to give light and let odors escape.

Rounded corners, paneled walls, and tiled floors make the ideal furnishings for a kitchen, as dust and germs have fewer lurking places.
If that is beyond one's means, have a hard plaster wall flush with wide, tight-fitting baseboard, and give all a coat of light colored paint once a year. Have the paint enameled.

so it may be washed frequently. A hardwood floor is nearly as costly as a tiled one, so the average householder must fall back on linoleum.
It pays to get the best quality.

Do not stint on your sink. Delay building if you must put in a wood and zinc combination, which breeds all sorts of germs. Solid porcelain is the first choice; next best is porcelain lined with tile backing, but even cast iron is better than wood.

The sanitary sink is open all around to light and air, has a continuous tiled backing, with no crevices for dirt, and the waste pipes must run separate from the soil pipes clear to the house drain.
At the right side have a draining board, and another at the left, even if it must be hinged for the lack of space.

Above the backboard of the sink have a shelf or rod full of hooks and a bit higher build in a closet a little wider than the sink and six inches deep. Here can be stored dishes, vegetable brushes, all the things so important to a germ-free kitchen, yet often neglected because they are not "handy."

There is a growing fancy to heat the kitchen by a radiator and do away with a range in favor of a gas stove. Managed well, this is no more expensive than coal, and far more convenient. The sole difficulty is with hot water, which can be obviated by a patent water heater in the cellar or by coils under the boiler.

If a range is used, whatever its make, see that the ventilators are ample and there is provision for light and air. Put in a dark corner means either artificial lighting or burned foods and cross cooks.

Utilize the wall space near the range with shelves and hooks, where can be stored some of the pots, pans, ladles, and seasonings always needed in cooking. If there is a corner for a hanging clock there will be less guessing in cooking. Also have a nail where "lifters" may be fastened by an elastic hanger—it is a big saving on tea towels.

A convenience is a narrow board fastened to the wall at each side of the cupboard, so that it leaves a space behind to stow lids of stew-pans.

Another kitchen convenience is a hinged breadboard, with a cupboard above it to hold baking pans, spices, weights, cutters, rolling pins, fla-vorings—everything at hand for cake, pie, or bread making.

Remember, the aim of every kitchen is to save the cook steps.
The more this is done the more time she has to keep everything sanitary. Less than this is a menace to family health.

Buckles to the Fore.

Big buckles are emphatically to the fore this season. They are to be worn upon all manner of hats save those intended for really ceremonious occasions; as a fastening for evening wraps and as clasps for girdles and collars upon daytime frocks.

Therefore if money isn't an object, be sure to look about the shops for a really smart buckle or set of buckles. You will find them a-plenty, but the smartest of them are of square, oblong, or oval shape in chased or jewel-set silver or gold; in Russian enamel; in Cloissonne on metal; in hand-painted china, and in jade. Some of the handomest buckles are of a fabric like cloth of gold or silver heavily embroidered; of old French tapestry threaded with metalline strands and of hand-embroidered velvet or satin.

If you cannot afford to buy a handsome big buckle and haven't the courage to try to fashion one of a fabric, search among the trunks in the attic for an odd shoe buckle.
One of these in metal may be polished and run through with a strip of black velvet ribbon, and there always is the chance that the search may be rewarded by the finding of a shoe buckle in English paste, than which there is no smarter trimming for a tailored hat in beaver or velvet.

Making Corks Fit.

To make corks fit in catsup bottles take one that are a little large and boil them in clear water for 30 minutes.
This decreases their size. Insert them in the mouths of the bottles while hot, as they expand in cooling, thus making perfectly tight stoppers.

Colored Gloves.

I wonder whether the attempt to introduce colored gloves will find favor in this country? I was pleased the other day with the appearance of a pair of dark egg blue kid gloves of three-quarter length heavily stitched with black silk, because they were a change from the champagne, dove, and white that one usually sees.

The worst of such an innovation is that it tempts those who love the bizarre note in dress to wear more and more brilliant colors, and the very bright one are trying to the hands.

Otherwise there is a distinct note of smartness in the new colored gloves, provided they intensify one of the color schemes of a dress or add to a black or gray costume a note of definite brightness.

How to Save on Soap Bill.
Save all spare grease and heat on back of the stove until lukewarm; then strain. Empty the contents of a 10-cent can of potash into a quart of water and stir until dissolved, and let stand about an hour to cool. Into this put one cupful of ammonia and one tablespoonful of borax, and then turn into lukewarm grease and stir until thick; will take about ten minutes. Then, you see, for about 15 cents you realize about 90 cents worth of very good soap.

To Press Wrinkled Dresses.

When pressing wrinkled dresses or waists, I have found their looks to be much improved by having a cup with a thin starch water in it on the ironing board and using the starch water to dampen the articles in, as I pressed them.
